

His and Her Style Bathrooms

At Empire Bathrooms we understand that women's and men's needs in the bathroom can be different. Sharing such a personal space can be difficult, especially if you need your bathroom to act as a relaxing sanctuary as well a functional space. So here are some of our tips which can help to create a bathroom that caters to all users of the bathroom:

- Twin vanities allow simultaneous use in a busy household and also allows you to have your own individual space within a shared bathroom.
- Twin shower heads serve multiple functions – efficiency, aesthetics and romance! Choose this simple option as your statement piece, with many styles to choose from.
- The ultimate solution to the ongoing toilet seat gender debate: have a stylish residential urinal installed.
- Consider a having a bidet installed.
- If interruptions to soaking in your bath is something you want to avoid, consider making structural changes to create a separate toilet and basin.
- A separate vanity and mirror outside of the bathroom is a great way to allow simultaneous privacy in the shower and extended access to the vanity area away from steam and moisture.
- As men begin to spend more time in the bathroom, using a greater range of grooming products, consider separate storage areas for his and her grooming and hygiene items – separate wall mounted tallboys, separate drawers under twin basins and recessed shelving on either side on the mirror are all great options.
